Can one provide a different identification number than the organisation or personal identity number when applying for domain names under .se or .nu?

Agent - 2026-11-19 - New registration of domains

The holder's organization number or personal identity number must always be provided if available.

In some countries, personal identity numbers may not be handled in this manner, and it may not be possible to provide them in the application. In such cases, an equivalent form of identification must be provided. This could, for example, be the holder's passport number or another type of ID document identification number. However, please note that when the passport or ID document expires and is no longer valid, the holder's information needs to be updated with a new valid ID document identification or passport number.
